

2010 CENSUS - OKLAHOMA DEMOGRAPHIC PROFILE HIGHLIGHTS

Source information for entire document: US Census Bureau 2000 and 2010 Census, Demographic Profiles

On Thursday, May 26th, the US Census Bureau released demographic profiles for Oklahoma, all 77 counties, 733 places (cities, towns, and Census Designated Places), US Congressional Districts, and State Senate and House Districts. What follows are some brief highlights of the information available, comparing state and national level data.

Age:

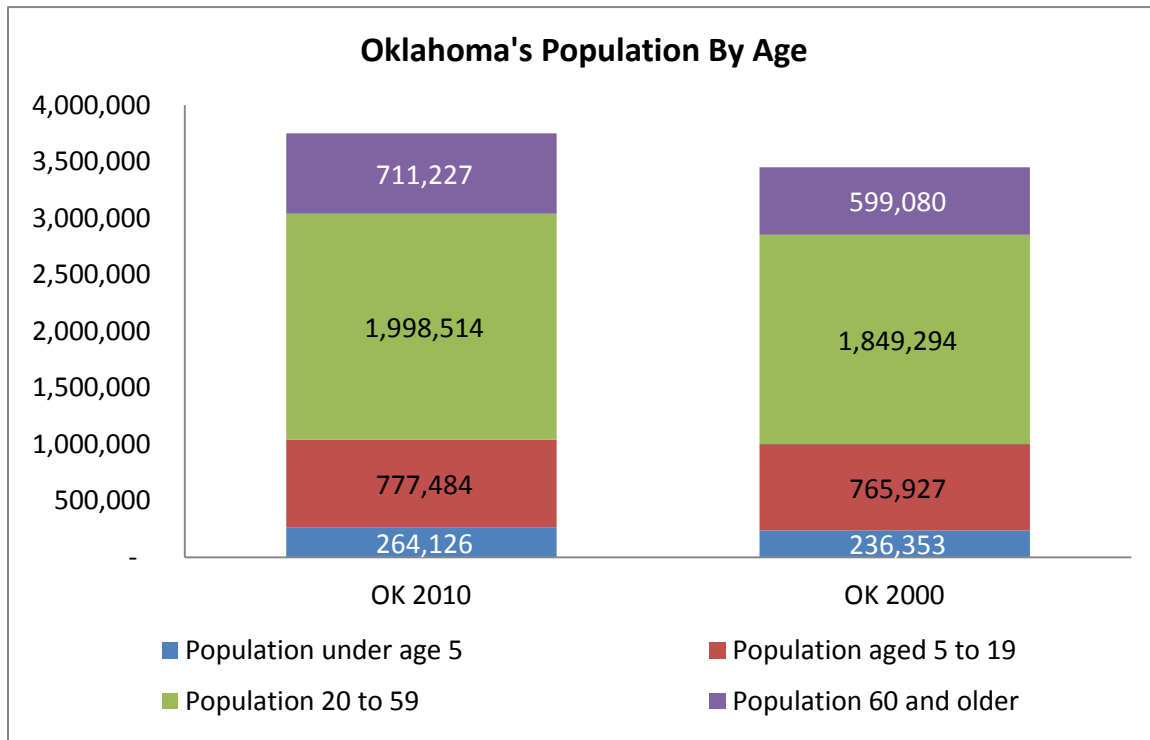

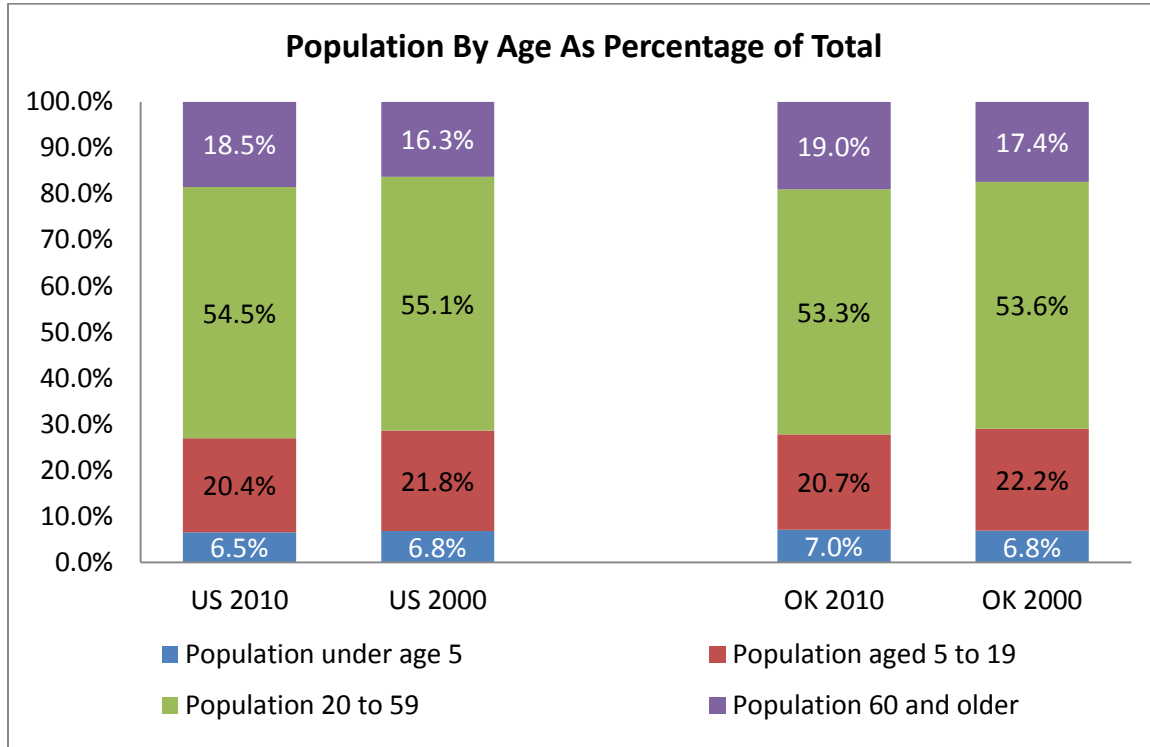

While the state has aged slightly over the last decade, it has aged more slowly than the nation as a whole. Oklahoma moved from being slightly older than the rest of the nation in 2000 to being slightly younger in 2010.

Households by Type and Size:

Very little changed with regard to state and national household size or family size between 2000 and 2010. Both the nation and the state saw some movement towards non-family households (a family includes the householder plus one or more persons related to the householder by birth, marriage or adoption), but there was little change in the family household sub-mix.

Households and Group Quarters:

In addition to identifying the residents of a household as the householder, a spouse and children, the Census Bureau also identifies the number of live-in relatives (grandchildren, parents of the householder, cousins, etc), non-relatives (roommates, friends, foster children, etc), and unmarried partners.

Oklahoma Continues to have a larger than average percentage of the population living in institutionalized group quarters settings.
